

Section Three Euston to Camden Town

Section Three

Euston to Camden Town

Two route options have been identified for this section which runs between Euston station and Camden Town.

Both options serve Euston station, Mornington Crescent and Camden Town Underground stations.

It is important that we have your views on this section. Please complete the questionnaire at the back of this brochure to give us your feedback.

Option 1 - red

Euston to Camden Town via Camden High Street

From Euston station the route runs north along Eversholt Street, past Mornington Crescent Underground station and along Camden High Street to Camden Town Underground station. At the Underground station the route takes the right fork into Kentish Town Road. After 200 metres the route turns left into Hawley Crescent. The return southbound route turns left at the end of Hawley Crescent into Camden High Street passing Camden Town Underground station and continuing down Camden High Street to Mornington Crescent then onto Eversholt Street to Euston.

This option has trams operating two-way along the full length of Camden High Street between Mornington Crescent and Camden Town stations.

Advantages

- Access to shops and businesses in the local area
- Direct and quick route
- Northbound and southbound tram stops on the same road making it easy for passengers to use and understand
- Reduction in traffic levels and improved environment on Camden High Street
- Reverts the operation of Camden High Street from its current one-way working north of Mornington Crescent to two-way traffic

Disadvantages

- Traffic diversions would be needed to alter current road layout to accommodate the tram. This would move traffic onto alternative parallel roads
- Camden High Street becomes controlled access for traffic servicing properties and businesses

Option 2 – blue Euston to Camden Town via Bayham Street/Crowndale Road

From Euston station the route runs north along Eversholt Street, past Mornington Crescent Underground station and along Camden High Street to Camden Town Underground station.

At the Underground station the route takes the right fork into Kentish Town Road. After 200 metres the route turns left into Hawley Crescent.

The southbound route turns left at the end of Hawley Crescent into Chalk Farm Road. At Camden Town station the route turns left into either Camden Road or Greenland Road and then immediately right into Bayham Street. The route continues along Bayham Street for 550 metres before turning right onto Crowndale Road.

At the end of Crowndale Road the route turns left onto Eversholt Street passing Mornington Crescent and continues on to Euston.

Advantages

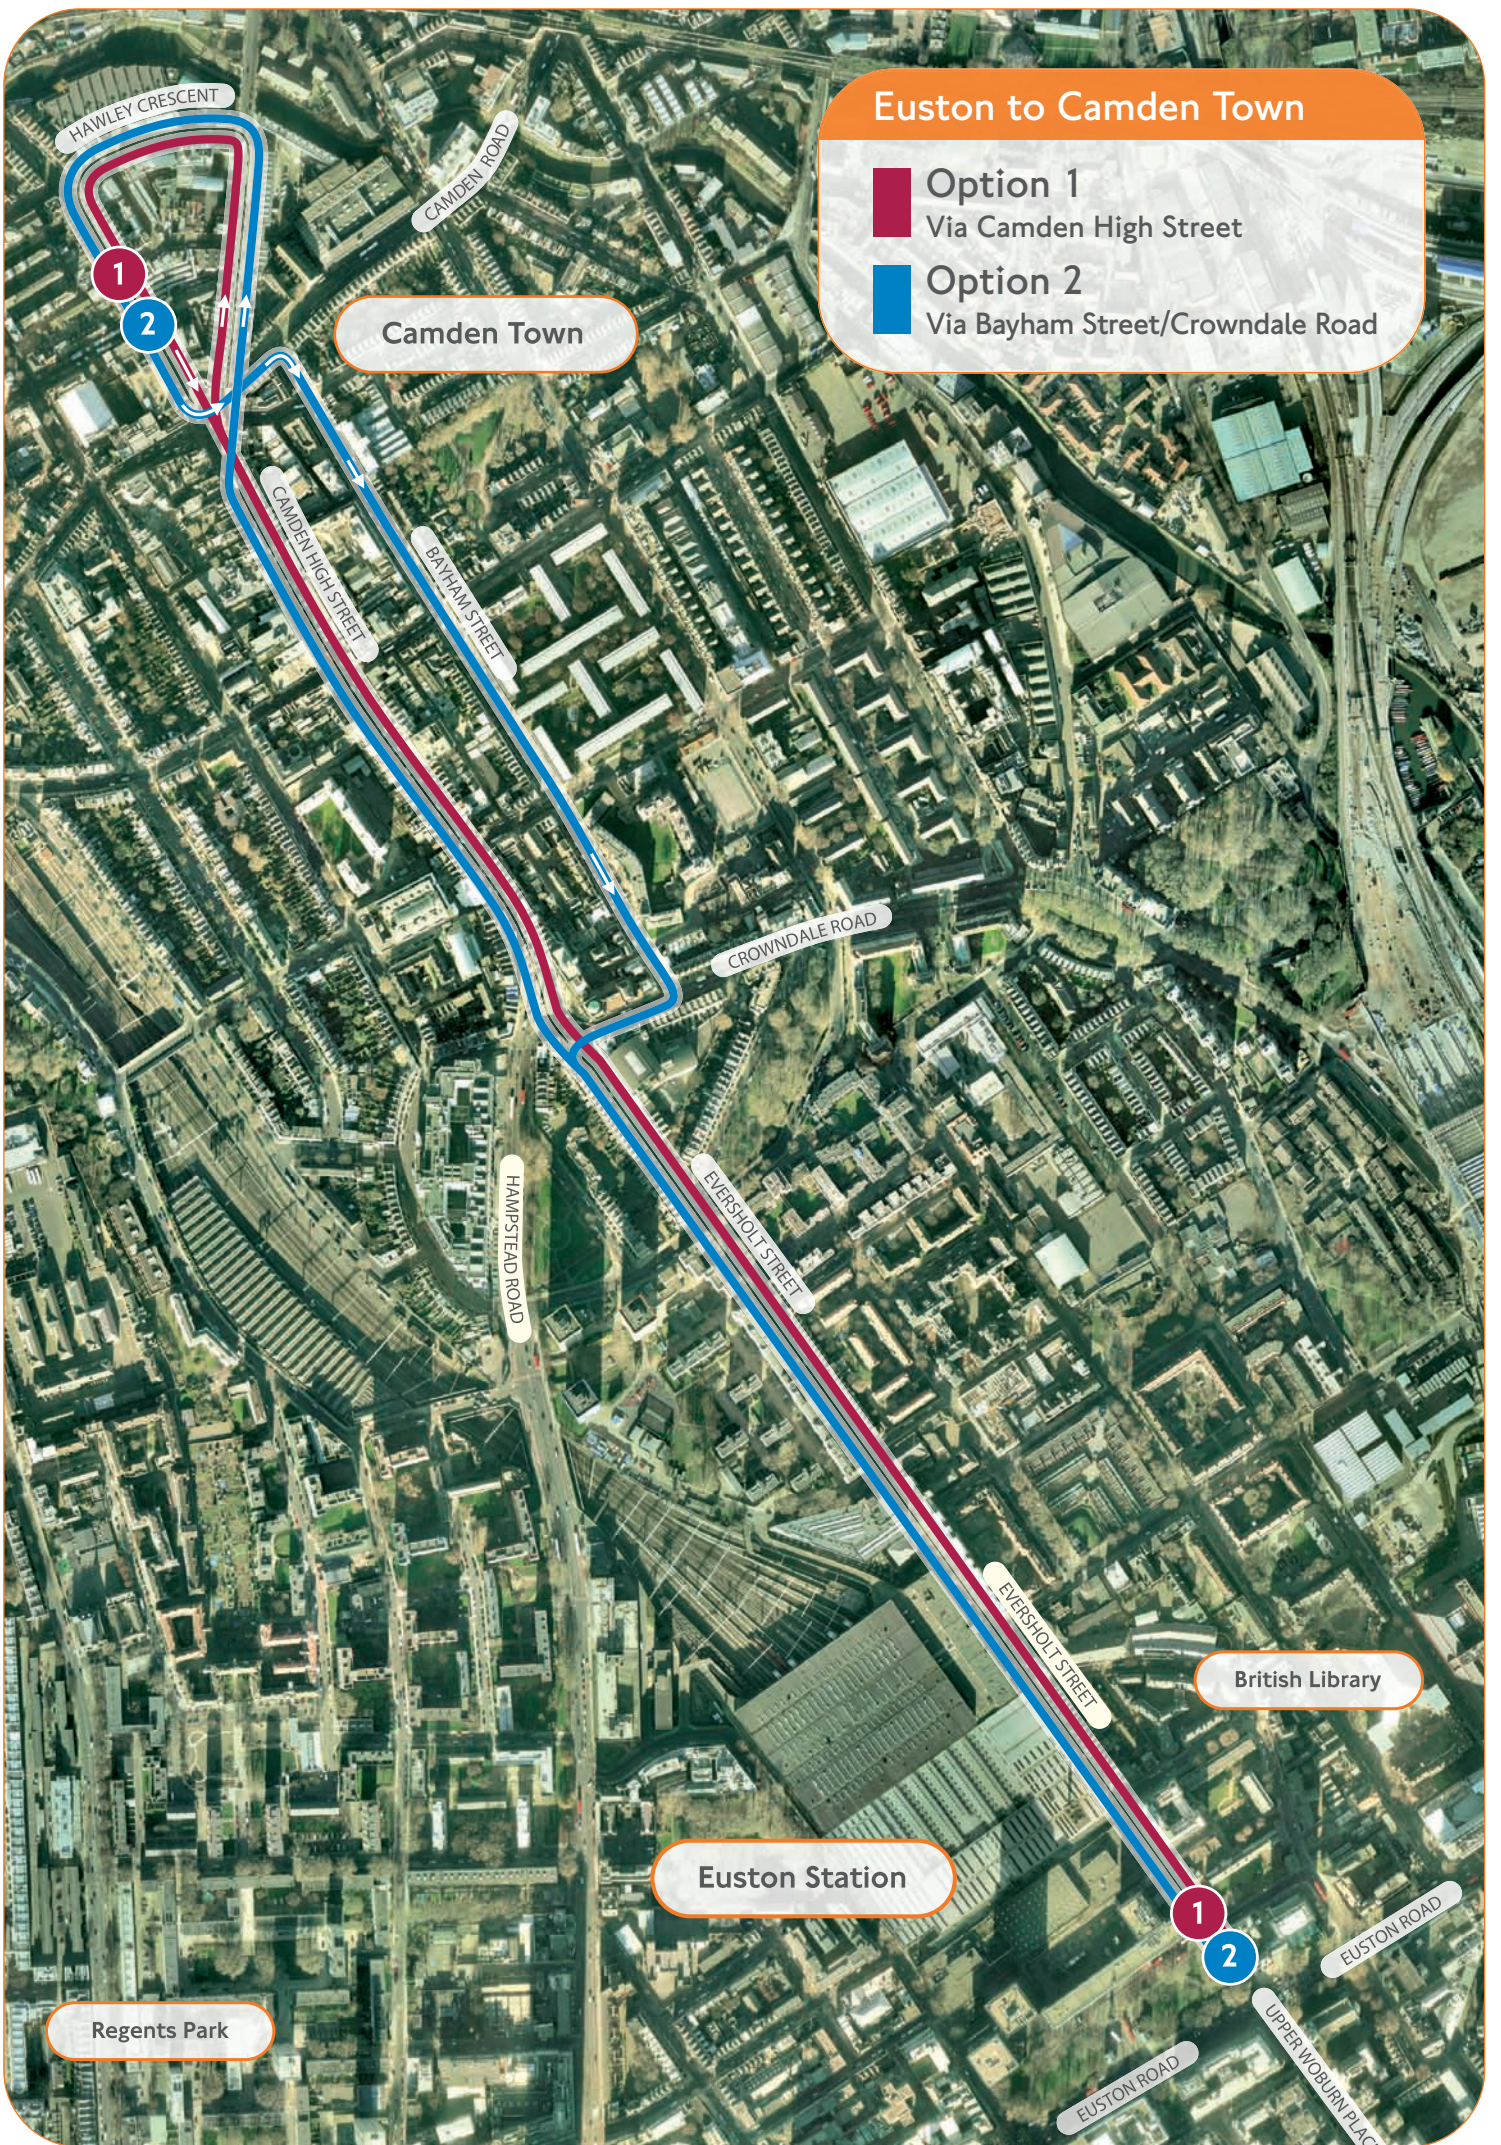

- Access to shops and local amenities on Camden High Street, Bayham Street and Mornington Crescent, as well as local residential areas.
- Reduction in traffic levels and improved environment on Camden High Street.
- Less need for traffic to move onto parallel roads from Camden High Street

Disadvantages

- Northbound and southbound trams operating on different streets between Camden Town and Mornington Crescent.
- Longer and less direct route.
- Property purchase could be required to deliver this option
